FREEMASONRY IN THE EAST. Robert Morris, E-q., delivered a lecture last evening, at the Cooper Institute, on the subject of Freemasonry in Syria and Palestine. He said that he had been sent Freemasonry of the Eastern nations; 2d obtain information of the dred to the Masons, such as the Knights to the East, by the Masons of this country, for four objects: 1st. To examine into th bindred to the Masons, such as the Knights of St. John; 3d. To visit the places renowned in the traditions of Masonry—Tyre, Jerusalem, and others; 4th. To make collections of specimens, relies, etc. His remarks on these topics were very in teresting, not only to Masons, but to the general public. At Smyrna he found eight fasonic Lodges, which included among their members the foreign Consuls and most of the nations not Roman Catholic, and nearly all the Turkish dignitaries. At other shade. But here lies the difficulty Ephesus he attended a Masonic pic-nic. At Beyrout he found the only lodge in | monize. The wisest is to settle on black Palestine. Among its members is the spotted with one or other of these shades. Pasha of all the territory from Asia Minor to Egypt. Mr. Morris found the Pasha a plum color are pretty generally useful very gentlemanly, intelligent, and friendly contrasts. I do not mention crow, beman, willing to give him the fullest aid in the prosecution of his enterprise. At Damascus he found sixteen Masons, among them the renowned Abd el Kadir, formerly Sultan of the Arab race of North Africa, where he carried on a most destructive war with the French for three years. Mr. Morris was most kindly received by this fiery old warrior, who gave him the sim-bolical kisses on the right and left cheeks. Throughout Syria and Palestine there is an intense prejudice among the lower classes against Free Masonry, but the high officers of the Turkish government, and the few colucated and intelligent men which are to be found there, are well disposed toward the Order. Nowhere in the world, Mr. Morris says, is there such attachment to Free Masonry as among the Mohantmedans. In the famous city of Tyre, the seat of King Hiram, he could tained that the taste for puffs and ruffles not find, after three days' search, a single learning, not a single person who could the Medicis' flounce round the throat; but read. Tosday, and since last Monday, from one end of Broadway to the other, on almost every other corner, there were men and boys vending caricatures of the threeinn bend. The caricatures are printed on hits of pasteboard, the size of an ordinary card photograph, and retailed at the low price of three cents. In uristocratic localities, five cents has been der anded, but the figures are falling, and by the .and of the week the bend can be had for a penny. The paper-dealers have caught the infection, and you can purchase at the star, enery stores a supply t note paper and envelop bearing the Greeian hend in the most approved style. Placards on the dead walls and brick piles about the city tell you where you can make purchases to the best advantage, and I would not wonder much if we were soon told where pictures taken or the spot by our own artist could be had for nothing. The silly fashion is being laughed at as never fashion was before, and if its advocates and patrons are able to survive it, they can bid defiance to pub-Lie opinion. Occasionally a sufferer seen on Broadway, but she is gazed at by everybody and jested by the impolite to such an extent that an afternoon promenadewith the Greeian bend must be quite unsatisfactory. The excienture does not end with the work of the printer; the minstrel balls, and some of the theaters are making the most of the occasion, and tind the new fashion a very good subject for burlesquing. It is hinted that one of the city clergymen, famous for his attacks on immoralities, is about to deliver a sermon, or a part of one, on this new in-

M. DE SARTIGES, who was recently appointed Senator of the Empire, and who represented France a long time at Washington and Mexico, is the son of a lad whose history was about the same as that Ad Enoch Arden's wife. She was married to an officer of the havy, who left her one morning, and never came back to Twelve months afterward she learned that her poor husband had per shed in a storm off the Antilles, and in few weeks she received an official cirtificate that he was dead. A few years afterward she married M. de Sartiges, ery wealthy nobleman, descended from an ancient family, with whom she lived very happily. One day M, and Mme. de Sartiges went to the theater in Lyons, where an opera was performed, and took front scats in a proseenium box. The house was crowded, and M. de Sartiges was requested by the manager to permit When the performance was over, Mm the stranger, uttered a piercing cry an fainted away. She had to be carried her hotel. Next day the stranger asked an interview with M. de Sartiges. He told him he was the first husband of Mme. LA MODE.

Benntiful Things for the Benntiful. The Paris correspondent of the New York Herald furnishes, under date of the 2d instant, the following glimpses of the Paris fashions: ROSE GARLANDS, LOW SHOES AND SHORT

The new fall styles have come out in all the large fancy stores. They contain nothing, however, that has not been already announced and anticipated. The fashions predicted in my correspondence about a mouth ago are only now unfolding their attractions to the public in Paris, and are creating the same wonder your readers have already experienced Why people should wonder at anything now that a full rose garland (yellow an red) is worn on the top of one's forehead low shoes at the pedestal, and short con tumes, is the greatest enigms of all. Paris fashions cannot be a parody. Of course what is set by Paris most be charming though one cannot help laughing at one self in the glass. It is ill taste to sa one is hideous, but excusable to call one's appearance funny. So I beg to be allowed to say our new styles are squeer.

PELERINES, OVERSKIETS, ETC. But to proceed to generalize. The pelerine and overskirt in one is the decided favorite. This becomes every one. The collar only or folds lifted up by a rosette It is always about the same elegant thing It is made of cloth, twill, poult or velvet Peplin, too, is thus employed. The under skirt is striped velvet or veloutine plush. The other style is pure lancret or Wat tesu, rich satin, loose folds from the neck in the shape of a Louis XV, sacque, with tight bodice in front and falling over a beflounced, bequilled, and beplatted underpetticoat of the same material or of chameleon poult COSTUME MATERIALS OFNERALLY. The third is a striped velvet plain petcoat and sleeves, with a black velvet cape and square ends in front. The fourth, in plain woolen fancy stuffs, such as rops, tartans, serge, is a costume composed of underskirt plain, over skirt panier and jacket or cardinal cape to match. The shades are very trying, especially orange and claret stripes. Amaranth is a great favorite, salmon, garnate, pomegranate and green. These are out in crosscuts for trimmings, are made into under-skirts, with sleeves to match, or used as over paniers behind in harmony with -it is to adopt the color which does har-Russian gray or alumine, bronze, and cause, though it is much liked by our first rate dressmakers, I think women are prowing enough just now over men as it is. I also recommend Jasper green en poult. With such a collection as this ill taste can always be avoided, and it is strange that this should not be the case.

LACES AND RUPPLES. In the lingerie department the prettiest things for the season are ruffles of Valena siennes for the front of bodices. The lace is mounted spiral shape, and a small frill is sewed into the neck of the bodice There are, too, some very lovely high chemisettes made of insertion and puffed muslin, to be worn over low bodices; the sleeves are puffed also from the wrist to the armhole. Some fear has been enters will lead us to the style of Oueen Elizas eth's halter or collar of b
